2011 Round 5 Afrobarometer Survey in Kenya

Summary of Results

The Afrobarometer is an independent, non-partisan research instrument that measures the social, political and economic atmosphere in Africa. In November 2011, the Afrobarometer surveyed a nationally representative, random, stratified probability sample of 2,400 Kenyans. Face-to-face interviews were conducted in the language of the respondent's choice by the Afrobarometer team based at the Institute for Development Studies (IDS), University of Nairobi. The sample was drawn by taking the smallest geographic units, Census Enumeration Areas (EAs), and stratifying all EAs across the country into separate lists according to region and urban or rural status. 300 EAs were then randomly selected from these lists with the probability proportionate to its size in the overall population as represented in the 2009 census conducted by the Kenya National Bureau of Statistics (KNBS). This ensured that every eligible adult had an equal and known chance of being selected. Eight households were then randomly selected within each EA, and a respondent 18 years of age or older was randomly selected from each household. A gender quota ensured that every other interview must be with a female. A sample of this size is sufficient to yield an overall margin of error of +/-2 percent at a confidence level of 95 percent.

We gratefully acknowledge the support of UK's Department for International Development (DfID), Mo Ibrahim Foundation, Swedish International Development Agency (SIDA), and United States Agency for International Development (USAID) for Afrobarometer Round 5.

Note: All figures in the following tables are percentages, rounded to whole numbers. Due to rounding, columns may not add up to exactly 100. Also note that a figure of "0" reported indicates that at least 1 response, but less than 0.5 of all responses, were in this category, whereas a dash ("-") or blank cell indicates that there were no responses in this category. For Questions 1 through 100, weighted frequency distributions are reported.
